The Ultimate Training Officer is a two-day course developed on the principle that the Training Officer is 100% responsible for laying the foundation of a new generation of police officers. This program offers Training Officers concepts (not processes) behind decision making under stress, with the goal of setting the foundation for new officers to continually grow and develop throughout their career. Students will learn how to foster the process of building their officer's knowledge, skills and abilities in a way that will enhance that officer's leadership, communication and safety skills beyond initial field training.

The Ultimate Training Officer is built using more than 50 empirical resources and collaborations from Subject Matter Experts (SME's) throughout North America. These concepts will enhance the Reno, San Jose and/or tailored in-house models of training and are easily incorporated into any basic or advanced curricula.

Rooted in our foundational belief that quality training should provide evidence based, practical, and immediately applicable tools for officer safety, the goals of this class are simple:

1. To identify the essential characteristics and skills necessary for improving performance of new police officers, with an emphasis on decision making under stress and officer safety.
2. To teach a new way of providing feedback that breaks with traditional feedback models and has been proven to increase human performance.
3. To provide the tools to train officers in essential skills that are frequently not taught in basic academy curriculum.

This course is constantly evolving, incorporating current events and relevant supporting material that meet the professional needs of Law Enforcement. During this dynamic and entertaining seminar, participants will discuss and learn (but not be limited to) the following:
